Natives of Babylon, L.I., Object to the Use of Fire Island as a Quarantine Station.

The New York Authorities Are Quite Determined to Use the Place for That Purpose.

The Arrival of European Steamers at Quarantine Causes Further Trouble.

FIRE ISLAND, Sept. 12.—When the steamer Cephus arrived at Fire Island a great throng on the dock refused to take the lines of the steamer. The crew became enraged and turned the ship's hose on and drenched the crowd. The steamboat, however, could not make a landing and was finally compelled to anchor in the channel. Two attempts made to tie up were unsuccessful.

QUARANTINE, 4 p. m.—Dr. Jenkins was informed by telegraph that the steamboat Cephus was anchored in Fire Island inlet and that the village men opposed the landing of passengers. On receipt of this information the doctor wired the Government suggesting the calling out of the militia.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The following official bulletin of the Health Board was issued at 10 this morning: "No cases of cholera have appeared in this city."

QUARANTINE, 12:15 a. m.—Dr. Watson says the stoker on La Champagne shows cholera symptoms. He is going aboard again as soon as he sees Dr. Jenkins, and will then decide as to the disposition of the vessel.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 12.—Judge Barnard has issued a temporary injunction restraining Governor Flower, D. P. Sammis, Dr. Jenkins and others from using Fire Island as a quarantine station.

QUARANTINE (noon)—Dr. Jenkins has just read the following report received from Dr. Byron at 11 o'clock: "There are no cases of gastric or intestinal trouble among the Rugia's passengers on Hoffman Island. Max Sithwerna, age two, has bronchitis and is improving. The personal baggage of the Normannia's passengers is being disinfected and fumigated. All patients have been O. K. for the past 15 hours."

SWINBORNE ISLAND, Sept. 12.—All O. K. for the last 15 hours. Up to midnight there had been admitted to Swinborne Island hospital 121 persons, 56 were suspects, 27 were treated, 14 were admitted dead, 13 died in hospital and all were transferred to Hoffman Island, and one was discharged. Of deaths, eight occurred within two hours after time of admission.

BABYLON, L.I., Sept.—This place and vicinity are still terribly excited over the action of the state authorities in taking possession of Fire Island as a quarantine station. Close watch was kept all last night by the baymen of Great South bay to see that no passengers were landed at Fire Island from the Pest steamers. It is clearly evident that they mean to prevent by extreme measures the landing of undesirable passengers. At six o'clock this morning the steamboat Eclipse, having on board a committee of the members of the Board of Health and prominent citizens, left Bay shore for Fire Island. When the steamer arrived at the latter place the committee were met by President Williams of the New York Board of Health, Dr. Cyrus Edson, and Lawyer E. J. Jens, the New York health officials and local authorities held a consultation with a view of adjusting the difficulty. President Wilson told the committee that Fire Island would be occupied for the purpose for which it had been purchased by the state and it would be folly on the part of the local authorities to question the right of the state in the matter. Mr. Wilson said the Government would send troops to Fire Island if necessary to prevent any acts of violence or interference with the quarantine officers in the performance of their duty. Close watch was kept last night over hotels and cottages by the health officers of New York, as it was feared an attempt would be made to burn them. This morning about 20 special officers were sworn in and are now guarding the property in the name of the state. The feeling against Captain Sammis, who sold the Fire Island hotel and property to the state officials, is bitter. He is denounced by the residents along the shore at South Bay and in one instance was threatened with violence. Sammis left Fire Island on the 6 o'clock train this morning and had to be escorted to the depot by a guard. Many men of the village of Babylon are armed and say that they will resist the threatened invasion of the Normannia's passengers. Justice of Peace James B. Cooper says he fears the hotel and cottages will be burned if the landing is attempted. It is thought, however, that the state have already a sufficient force of men now at Fire Island to cope with the Bay men and villagers should they attempt any violence.

QUEBEC, Sept. 12. — The steamer Brothers arrived up from Grosse Isle at noon, having on board the immigrants and intermediate passengers from the steamship Labrador. Dr. Beaudri, chief inspector of the Provincial board of health, after an examination allowed the provincial board of health and custom officers to embark and the passengers landed. Amongst the latter were nineteen immigrants for the United States, who will have to be fumigated and take a bath before obtaining their railway tickets. The passengers from the steamship Wandrahm were landed early this morning at Grosse Isle, as were also the rags on board, which will be destroyed immediately. Hon. Mr. Dewdney and Sir W. P. Caron arrived up from Gross Isle on board the Druid last evening. Dr. Collinswell has been appointed C. P. R. physician here, and when the immigrants from the Lake Nepigon landed on Saturday, they were obliged by Dr. Sewell to undergo a cleansing and no immigrants were booked for the C.P.R. train before producing a bath ticket obtained at the baths on Louise embankment. All the baggage was also landed and fumigated.

HAPPENINGS AT NANAIMO.

To Purchase the Electric Light Plant—A Sunday Excursion, Etc.

NANAIMO, Sept. 12.—The Trades and Labor Council, at the last meeting passed a resolution advocating that the city purchase the present electric light works. The assignee claims that during the past month there was a profit on the working, after paying all expenses, including interest and depreciation of stock, of $143, and that when the system is in proper working order the profit will be about $1000 per month. The figures as shown on the books in the hands of the assignee have not yet been made public, but providing they prove to be as whispered round then the by-law to raise the necessary money will carry by a large majority.

The excursion under the auspices of the Nanaimo Silver Cornet Band yesterday on the steamer City of Nanaimo was a success. The boat was fairly packed and the funds will be a welcome addition to their exchequer. The trip was a delightful one, as their was an absence of any wind that would tend to destroy the equilibrium of those who are inclined to suffer from sea sickness. A like excursion will probably be repeated next Sunday. The affair took place between church hours, so that it did not deter any one from attending divine service.

The boys of Mr. J. Shaw's class had an outing to Mount Benson on Saturday. They left the city about 7 o'clock in the morning and walked all the way, and although they covered about 14 miles of hard walking none of them appeared to be the least fatigued over the journey. It well repays anyone to visit the mountain, as the scenery from its top is well worth seeing.

The whist tourament commences in St. Paul's Institute to-morrow night. This time there are two prizes, one prize for ladies and the other for gentlemen. There are quite a number of entries and the contest promises to be keen and interesting.

A grand calico ball will be given in the opera house on the second Wednesday in October, by the members of the above institute. Refreshment will be served by the ladies, so that those who take it in will not need to leave the building until the event is brought to a close.

A Unique Banquet.

Hon. Theodore Davie will banquet the employes of the late Daily News at the Balmoral this evening. The affair, which will be a sort of farewell, will be a very touching one. An appropriate list of toasts has been arranged. The host will respond to, "Why I did it and what it cost me." Alf. Woods will answer to "How to assist in managing a newspaper." Capt. Clive Phillips-Wolley was to have answered to "How I sold my stock at par, "but he is out of town. "The departed" will be gulped down in silence, for it will prick up pangs of remorse in the memories of many present. A. N. Brown, the felicitous, will speak of the prospects of Seattle, or some other town on the Sound, where he intends locating. Some of the typos would like to ask the host to respond to "why was the union blamed for the failure in the valedictory?" but will probably refrain. Messrs. Davie and Ellis will discuss "the Libel Law," and Manager Renwick will respond to the sentiment in connection with the toast of his health, of "Great Expectations Unrealized." Mr. Henry Lawson will talk with sophistical skill "How to Make Editorials Fit an Emergency." and the two ex-proprietors of the Colonist will discuss their feelings on being "Taken in and done for." Mr. Higgins will respond to this toast of his health by simply saying: "To err is human, to forgive is divine." And then the happy family will sing, "Should auld acquaintance be forgot," and go home to try and solve the problem of how they are to live happily together and sail the unfortunate craft safely with so many Jonahs on board.

MENDOZA BROUGHT TO TIME

The Foreign Consuls and Warships Bring Him to His Senses---Great Fire in Albany.

Mexican Indians Beat the Government Troops in Two Sanguinary Engagements.

PANAMA, Sept. 12.—Further news of the turbulent state of affairs existing in Venezuela has come here. Gen. Pietro Mendoza, commander at La Guayra, on the morning of the 3rd received orders from Caracas to exact a large amount of money from the merchants of that place. Gen. Feverheia, Mendoza's adjutant, at once summoned all the leading merchants of the place to the governer's office, and when they were assembled informed them that they were prisoners until they paid the amount demanded, in sums ranging from $500 to $2000. The German, Dutch, Swedish, Norwegian, Belgian, Brazilian, Argentine and Costa Rica consuls and the American vice-consul, Golding, the agent of the Red line steamers, and the manager of Boulton's firm here, were also arrested. An appeal was made to the American consul, Hanna, for protection. Hanna at once saw the Spanish, British and French consuls, laid the facts before them and they all agreed to act together.

The commanders of the Dutch, French, Spanish and German warships also promised their hearty co-operation. With this backing Mr. Hanna formally demanded the unconditional release of the other consuls. Mendoza hesitated. The foreign warships got up steam, the Venezuia forces beat to arms, and the guns at Fort La Virgi were run out. For a while the situation was serious, and it looked as though a collision was unavoidable, but Mendoza hearing of the situation telephoned from Caracas to Pepper to comply with the demand and to do anything necessary to avoid trouble. He then called his lieutenant into the Cosa Armilla and resigned the dictatorship, proclaiming Guillermo Tell Villegas Pulido, a nephew of ex-President Villegas, as President and a member of the Federal Council. Pulido at once began the formation of a cabinet, leaving Mendoza out. It is believed that Mendoza will attempt to escape from the republic, with the booty he has secured from the capital and from forced loans. Generals Pepper, Mendoza and Tcheverria called the consuls together at the house of the Spanish consul and informed them of the change in the administration, and that hereafter they would respect foreign interests. Consul Hanna is generally commended for the nerve and backbone he displayed and the success of his firm stand in behalf of the imprisoned men, at a time when he was completely shut off from telegraphic communication with Minister Scruggs of the state department.

The river steamers are doing a big business now and will be very busy during this and the next three weeks, through the numerous annual fairs of the district.

Word was sent to the police quarters that a man named H. Hosts has been missing since Friday last. Hosts is believed to have come from Victoria about ten days ago and was staying at the Cosmopolitan hotel where he paid his board bill in advance and left his trunks. He was well dressed and is believed to be a mason. The police are making enquiries but have failed to find any trace.

On Saturday evening about 6:30 an old Scotchman named Findlay McRae, late bookkeeper in the Queen's Hotel, engaged a boat at Wilson's boat house, and went for a row down the river. McRae took his coat and hat off and placed them in the bottom of the bottom before leaving. He had only been gone about ten minutes when the men in the house heard cries. No notice was taken of them at first, and then two men named Buck and Williams went out to see if anything was wrong. In the dusk of the evening, far out in the water, they saw a man splashing and shouting They rowed quickly to the spot and found it was McRae. They managed to get him into the boat, but as they did so he expired. McRae's boat was secured further down the river, his coat and hat still in it. Landing the boat at the house of Dr. Fagan, they tried for hours to bring him round, but were unsuccessful. McRae has been here about two years and was well known. He has relatives in Ontario, where he was many years reeve of Glenelg, also warden of the county of Grey. It is said he was suffering from heart disease, and was very excitable. The body was viewed by a coroner's jury on Saturday night and will be interred this afternoon. An inquest will be held in the morning, when Mr. Pittendrigh returns from Hope, where he has been investigating a mystery.

George McLean, a half-breed, was tried this morning under the Speedy Trials Act, for stabbing Anne Rogers, two months ago, in the hand with a knife. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to nine months at hard labor. The Vancouver burglar cases comes up in the same court.

J. L. Galbraith's store, Cloverdale, was gutted by fire on Saturday night. The loss is not yet known.

A letter has been found left for one McRae to a man named McKinnon here, in which he said he was going for a row and might take a swim, but it would be too far out to swim ashore. He left instructions for the disposal of his property to his wife and family in Ontario.

She belongs to the Indemnification of Association of England, and steps will be taken to secure damages against the Victoria consignees who had her put under seizure, as, by the terms of consignment, questions of damages were to be settled by arbitration, and the credit of the vessel is practically unlimited.

The steamer Haytien Republic, which arrived on Sunday morning, experienced very rough weather off Portland bar last week, and at one time the ship was in danger of being capsized. Two barrels of brick stain and a barrel of gasoline lashed on deck, broke loose, carrying away part of the rail, and then dropped overboard.

The steamer Nagasaki has returned from an expedition to catch gulf whales. She came in for supplies. She left on August 20th, and shot three whales, all of which she lost but is expected will die. Dominion Trades Congress.

TORONTO, Sept. 10.—Before the Dominion Trades Congress, letters from the Victoria Trades Council were read regretting its inability to send delegates and urging the Congress to deal with Chinese and Japanese immigration, and the eight-hour question. The Vancouver Trades Council sent resolutions in place of a delegate, which said that the membership of the labor organizations on the Pacific slope was steadily decreasing, while the number of unemployed was steadily increasing. Thus the council say the exclusion of Chinese is the first plank in the labor platform. The following notice of resolution was filed: "Resolved—that this Congress is in favor of the Canadian Parliament taking the necessary means to secure the establishment and recognition of the independence of Canada." Resolutions were passed in favor of the Government Printing Bureau printing school books and supplying them free; in favor of a two-cent railroad rate and against property qualifications for municipal office. Resolutions were also passed, with only one dissentient, in favor of prohibiting the importation into Canada of laborers under contract.

The Historic Exhibition.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—A dispatch from Madrid says that the Historic American Exposition was inaugurated this morning with imposing ceremonies. The United States was represented by the American Embassy and by a delegation from the Smithsonian Institute. The exposition is held under the auspices of the Government in commemoration of the fourth centennial of the discovery of America. The chief exhibit is located in the National Museum, a splendid new palace just completed, and which was also inaugurated to-day. This exhibit comprises American objects of every kind, with special relation to the condition of North, South and Central America prior to and during the period of discovery and colonization.

The Maine Election.

BANGOR, Me., Sept. 12.—The state election is in progress to-day, and the indications during the early hours of this morning were that a heavy vote will be polled. This is the first election in the state under the Australian ballot law, and both sides claim that the new method of voting will prove an element in their favor. Both sides have conducted an energetic campaign for the past four weeks. The friends of ex-Speaker Reed say that he will have a comfortable plurality, although they hardly expect that the plurality of two years ago (4880) will be repeated, for the reason that the Democrats did practically nothing that year.

A Wonderful Case.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 12.—Rev. Wm. Brooks, a colored Baptist minister here, is strangely afflicted. He believes that he has been hoodooed or bewitched and he can eat nothing that will remain on his stomach. He is emaciated almost beyond belief, and has from 10 to 50 fainting spells daily. Another peculiar circumstance, and one which puzzles the physicians, is the fact that during these spells his intestines leave their normal position and ascend to the throat; he then becomes purple, then almost black in the face, bloody foam issues from his mouth and sweat pours from his body in streams. It is considered a wonderful case.

The Street Car Men

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 12.—A largely attended convention of drivers, conductors, motormen, and other street car employees, representing many of the leading cities of the country, was called to order at noon to day at Manshur's Hall. The convention was brought about by the American Federation of Labor, and of which organization the new union will be a branch. One of the participants said this morning that many efforts had been made to organize the street railway employees of the country, but they had been successful only to a limited extent, and then mainly upon the lines of local interests. Experience had demonstrated that singly and alone such unions had almost always been defeated, and that if the street car employees were seriously inclined to disenthrall themselves from the slavery of long hours, or burdensome toil, to improve their condition, and to participate in some of the progress and advantages of modern life, it is essential that they should have a national organization. Little was done at the noon session, and the real business will be inaugurated this evening.

A TREASURE LOST FOR THREE YEARS

Found After Long Waiting.

Three years ago, a prominent lady of St. John, New Brunswick, was prostrated with a severe illness. For a time her condition was critical, and her friends were greatly alarmed. A wasting fever seemed to defy all the skill and exertions of an able physician; this continued for days, when happily the fever was broken, and the hopes of relatives and friends became stronger when the good physician declared that there was now a chance for life.

The lady slowly regained a measure of strength, and was pronounced out of danger. Loving and willing hands ministered continually to her wants, but she still complained of pain though able to be out of bed for a time each day. Days and months rolled on, the pain continued, so that the lady almost despaired of ever being able to walk out again to breathe the air of heaven.

The physician had located the pain, but his best efforts could only bring temporary relief. Appetite was failing, sleeplessness had commenced its terrible work, and the lady was being reduced to a skeleton. Three years of sickness and suffering endured, and no cure!

In some way the lady's husband heard of Paine's Celery Compound—that remedy mighty to save—and induced his almost dying wife to try it. It was faithfully used for a couple of weeks, when a marked improvement was perceptible. No other medicine had worked in the same way; the results were beyond expectation, and all were delighted. For four months the Paine's Celery Compound was used, and the lady was carefully dieted. Strength returned, flesh was fast increasing, the once pale cheek now commenced to show a tinge of bloom, and the eyes brightened with a new lustre. The lady was able to be out in the open air; and in seven months, the treasure—health—which had been lost for three years, was found through the agency of Paine's Celery Compound. There is joy in that home, and the remedy that renewed the life of that dear wife and mother is highly praised, and recommended to every one with whom the family associates.

HEAVY FAILURES.

Disaster to Several London Building and Loan Associations.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The failure of the House and Land Investment Trust (Limited), announced yesterday, is part of a series of gigantic bank and building society suspensions now involving liabilities approximating £6,000,000. The first failure announced in this series was that of the London and General Bank (Limited); next the Liberator Permanent Building and Investment Society, and now comes this. The nominal capital of these concerns does not represent anything approaching their liabilities. The liabilities of the London and General Bank are roughly estimated at £1,000,000; of the Liberator Society at £2,500,000, and of the House and Land Trust at £2,000,000. Another great building and bank society is involved in serious financial difficulty, but suspension has not yet been announced. The collapse of this concern will shake the whole building society system in Great Britain. A run occurred yesterday on the oldest and most prominent bank in London, the Associated Workmen's Building Fund. Although the suspensions must affect the general financial position, a singular fact is that the crisis causes no panic or scare. The Limited Building investors are all small capitalists, whose life savings are swept away or imperilled by the failure of the concerns. The losses which led to the suspensions are chiefly traceable to injudicious speculations and land blocks. So far no suspicions of malversation have been attached to the directors of any of the ruined companies, although the shareholders charge them with concealing the true position of the institutions. Although finance in the meantime is unaffected by the widespread ruin brought on the small investors, the disaster must soon cause a strain upon the big banks.

HOW TO RUN A CREMATORY.

Health Officer Huntly of Vancouver Gives a Few Interesting Particulars.

The following reply has been received by Alderman Munn to a few questions preferred by him regarding the general workings of the Vancouver crematory, including statistics of expenses, etc.:

VANCOUVER, Sept. 8, 1892.

Alderman H. A. Munn.

DEAR SIR—I have been requested by His Worship, Mayor Cope, to reply to yours of September 6th re crematory, which I now do with pleasure.

The crematory erected here by Mr. Engle is now, and has been since its completion in November of last year, running regularly day and night, destroying refuse and garbage, with the exception of about eight days' interval of time while I had it shut down to remedy defects in construction which would not have occurred had proper supervision been exercised on the part of the city while the crematory was being built (the defects alluded to being the use of common red brick in retort linings, where only the best of fire brick should be used).

The principle is correct and with proper construction and care in operating the crematory, will do good work without causing any nuisance.

As an illustration of what ours is accomplishing, I may state that during the month of July last past, ours, consisting of four retorts, consumed of day garbage, 815 loads; night soil, 294 loads; slaughter-house offal, 31 loads; hogs, 2; horses, 2; dogs, 3; and that month is a fair average of the work done.

In reference to the destruction of night soil I may say that it will destroy same if it is unmixed with too much water, and care must be taken in that respect, otherwise your retorts will become blocked up and practically useless, as well as becoming a nuisance in themselves, but with proper care in the proportions of night soil and other garbage introduced into your retorts, a very satisfactory result can be obtained.

In doing the scavengering of this city, which we now do out of the rates collected by the city, I have arranged a means of obviating any danger such as above mentioned by providing the scavengers with a place in which to deposit any very watery matter which they may take from cesspools throughout the city, this place being a shute placed at the main outlet of one section of our sewerage system.

Ashes of course are not taken to the crematory, as it would be a useless expenditure of fuel to pass such through the retorts. I therefore instruct our scavenger to separate as far as practicable, all clean ashes, and use them for filling low places in outlying districts of our city, or for filling up the various wharves and slips on our water front.

As to cost of running crematory I herewith give you figures from monthly record kept by me, from which record the figures heretofore given you were taken:

These are for July last past:

Slack coal used, 6 tons, at $2.50 per ton, $15.00.

Lump coal used, 10 tons, at $6 per ton, $60.00.

Wood fir used, 6 cords at $3 per cord, $18.00.

Salary of two attendants together per month, $100.

Making a total of running expenses for the month of July of $193.

Any further information required will be cheerfully given, and if at any time any of your council should wish to personally inspect the work done at our crematory, by letting me know when to expect you, I shall be glad of the opportunity of meeting you on arrival here, and should take great pleasure in conducting you over our works and explaining them to you on the ground.

Ald. J. B. Lovell paid our crematory a visit last week while in this city.

Trusting the foregoing may be of use to you, and leaving it in your hands to make what use you may see fit, I remain, sir, yours respectfully,

J. HUNTLY,
Acting Medical Health Officer,
Vancouver, B.C.

ORIENTAL OCCURRENCES.

Epidemic of Cholera in Western China—Bandits and Typhoons.

Takow, in South Formosa, was visited by a terrible typhoon on July 21st. An enormous amount of property was destroyed.

The Seoul correspondent of the Mercury writes:—"The engagement of young Prince Rauglie, second son of the King, is announced to an heiress of the Min family. He is a manly little fellow and wears his princely honors right royally."

Information has been received that H. E. Governor Kiang Negai, of Canton, has put a stop to the tax on oil and rice. We are also informed that the Governor is well inclined to remit the tax on trade for the erection of forts, so it is hoped that notice to that effect will soon be given.

A Canton native paper says, with regard to the recent fighting with Chinese bandits in Tonkin:—"When the French took Tonkin they expected to obtain great riches, but after being a number of years in possession now, they have obtained no advantages whatever, after trying all sorts of means in vain. France has evidently come to the end of her tether, and is perfectly powerless in the face of her difficulties; she will never derive any benefit from Tonkin."

A very interesting discovery is reported from Japan in the late mail. Dr. Tsuboi has found a number of large artificial caves at Nishi Yoshimi, in Eastern Japan. They are supposed to have been first intended as places of sepulchre, but were later used as dens of thieves and a shelter for beggars. The discoverer and others completely explored them, and other investigations which will be watched closely by all interested in Japanese archæology, are being made. Fragments of the sacrificial vessels have been found, made of pottery, said by some to have been known to Japanese art in the eighth century, but others claim an earlier date for their introduction. The discovery is being freely discussed in Japanese papers.

The Seoul correspondent of a Shanghai evening paper, writing on July 28th, announces yet another wedding (there have been two lately) in the small foreign community there. He says: The marriage of the accomplished and popular daughter of His Excellency the American Minister to H. E. Herr von Brandt, the German Minister to Peking, is authoritatively announced to take place in August. Miss Heard has made for herself a large place in the respect and regard of Seoulites. She has proved herself one of the most public-spirited ladies it has been our pleasure to know, and in her departure our loss is truly great. Peking gains all we lose, and is to be congratulated accordingly. The community is unanimous in extending hearty wishes to Herr and Madame von Brandt.

A late Hongkong paper contains the following about the spread of cholera in western China:—The epidemic which has been raging in many places along the Yangtsze Valley continues with but little abatement. The native doctors seem to distinguish between it and the ordinary cholera. It is very severe and fatal in the majority of cases, and appears to be mostly confined to adults. The people tell of its severity and suddenness with every evidence of alarm. A certain doctor was called out one day in the afternoon to attend a patient with the "ma jioh wen" (the name by which it is called in native circles) and on the following day was sent for to see the patient again, but in the interval the doctor had taken and succumbed to the dread disease. In another case an elderly gentleman was out to see the theatricals one afternoon, was seized on his return home and died before morning. The Chinese mind is greatly exercised by this mysterious visitation, and is resorting to various devices in order to have it removed, the priests as usual everywhere being to the front, adding an extra expense and doing no good.

Hood's Sarsaparilla absolutely cures all diseases caused by impure blood and it builds up the whole system.

THEY ARE NOW LIVING.

HEARTY AND STRONG.

A few months ago a prominent family on St. Catherines street, Montreal, had two weak and delicate children; they were both girls, one aged four months and the other twenty-seven months. The anxious mother tried various modes of dieting in order to bring strength to the frail children. Several makes of artificial foods were used, but only one seemed to give any results, this was Lactated Food. After this celebrated food was used for a couple of weeks, the little ones refused other foods, which plainly showed that Lactated Food was relished and perfectly assimilated. There was a perceptible increase in flesh in both children; they became much stronger, and enjoyed perfect rest and sleep.

To-day these two children are amongst the healthiest and strongest in Montreal; and the parents are delighted and pleased.

Lactated Food is doing grand work every day. It is specially useful to every weak and puny child, and invariably gives strength and new life. We strongly advise every mother to give Lactated Food an immediate trial.

A HYPOCRITICAL ORGAN.

The Colonist seeks to make a point against the TIMES by magnifying a typographical error into "one of the worst and most impudent cases of garbling." This was an achievement worthy of the Government organ, which can at one and the same moment declaim against the offence of garbling and totally misrepresent an opponent's position. Hypocrisy, it is said, is the vice of small minds, and judging from the Colonist's fondness for the vice, its mind must be microscopic indeed. In the Davie regulation, as quoted in the TIMES of Friday, appeared the words "third day in each month" instead of "third Monday in each month." That the mistake was unintentional was plain from the fact that the alteration made no difference whatever in regard to our contention. The point to which we called attention was the power of the Government to change at will the date on which it might call on the city to recoup it for its Ross Bay station payments, with the alternative of being placed in the hands of the sheriff. It matters not whether the specified date is the third day or the third Monday of the month; the power to change the day taken to himself by the Premier remains the same. The Mayor had no means of knowing that the date had not been thus changed; he had before him only the statement sent to him by the Government, which was in the form prescribed by the regulation and was apparently intended as a formal demand for the money. We have no doubt whatever that the Colonist was quite well aware of the true nature of the mistake that occurred in the TIMES' quotation, and we confess to a feeling of surprise that even that paper should have been so dishonest and so impudent as to represent it as a case of garbling. To paraphrase the organ's own words, the statements and quotations of a newspaper that deliberately falsifies another's position in order to make a point in its own favor are not to be depended upon. We may further be allowed to remark that the employment of such subterfuges is the best possible evidence of the weakness of its own case.

SANITARY MATTERS.

The information supplied by Health Inspector Huntly of Vancouver in regard to the crematory in that city should prove of value to our citizens and our civic authorities. From Mr. Huntly's report there can be no doubt as to the efficiency of the system and its cheapness, and the people of Victoria must regret that there has been so much delay in providing a crematory here. The present state of affairs is full of danger to the health of the community. Disease-breeding filth is allowed to accumulate, scavengers are hindered in their operations by the want of a place to which to remove night soil, and an outbreak of zymotic disorders is positively encouraged. Besides, there is the ever-present danger of cholera paying us a visit. The city's sanitation will not be anything like complete until the sewerage system is finished and all houses are connected with it, but in the meantime something might be done to improve the present means of keeping it clean. The heaps of filth must be got rid of in some way, and the most important duty now before the civic authorities is the devising of a plan of escape from the present difficulties. With Vancouver's example before them they need not hesitate about using their power to build a crematory. That would provide the least objectionable sort of a place for the disposal of garbage and night soil, a fact as to which Mr. Huntly's letter furnishes very strong testimony. It cannot be too clearly kept in mind that the city is not safe under present conditions, and we trust that no further time will be lost in providing ways and means for a "clean-up." It is only fair, however, to point out that the Mayor and Council have been much hampered by the want of funds, since the ratepayers, in the exercise of their undoubted privilege, refused to grant the power of borrowing money to meet the extra call occasioned by the smallpox outbreak. If the proposed loan of $75,000 for Board of Health purposes had been allowed, then there would have been a surplus over the smallpox expenditure to devote to any other emergency. As the TIMES took occasion to predict when the by-law was rejected, the loudest fault-finders now are those who then put forth the greatest efforts to block the Council's plans. Those people who appreciate the difficulties of the present situation can also appreciate the futurity which left the civic authorities short of the necessary funds.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The News yesterday announced its own demise, accompanied by the explanation that the Colonist is its heir. It also explained that its publishers had found the publication of a paper at 15 cents per week to be unprofitable. Possibly it might in truth have gone further and informed the public that it would have been unprofitable at any price. At all events the public has its own theory as to the disappearance of the News, which is that it no longer had a raison d'etre after the Colonist had been whipped into the traces of the Davie chariot. We are not at all sure that this theory is incorrect.

Political friends and foes alike will lament the sudden death of Mr. James Trow, for many years member of the House of Commons for South Perth and chief whip of the Liberal party. From 1872 until the bye-election of a few months ago he represented the constituency named, and was finally defeated by a very narrow majority. Mr. Trow was much respected for his integrity and liked by men of all parties for his geniality. Though a sturdy party man, his disposition was so completely free from partizan offensiveness that political enemies were always among his personal friends. The country would be the better for having more such men as Mr. Trow in political life.

The Colonist objects to the mayor and council of Victoria asking the Dominion Government to do its duty in regard to quarantine precautions, and also to their preferring a request that the Government reimburse the city for the expenditure which its carelessness and inefficiency necessitated. We can quite understand the organ's opposition to such requests being laid before the Ottawa Government; but it very likely does not give its readers the true reasons for its unwillingness. It says the Dominion Government will pay no attention to such a memorial from the city. Just so. But both requests are reasonable and just, and as in course of time the Ottawa Government will ask the citizens of Victoria for their votes, they will have an opportunity of marking their sense of its conduct. The people of this city have borne a large amount of contumelious treatment from the Ottawa incapables; but there is surely an end to their patience in this direction. Possibly the Colonist sees a chance of its becoming exhausted by the refusal of the Government to heed the reasonable requests to be preferred by the council.

PLACE THE BLAME WHERE IT BELONGS.

TO THE EDITOR:—The News is a thing of the past. It passed from this vale of tears yesterday morning. In its "valedictory" a paragraph occurs which, to one who is conversant with the facts, casts a harsh reflection on the Typographical Union of this city. It reads: "The News has tried the experiment of a 15-cent paper, and has proved, to its own satisfaction at least, that a newspaper conducted in an office conducted under union prices will not pay at such a rate." Not a word is said about the bungling management that has characterized this venture since its inception. The employment of figure-heads at handsome salaries; the payment of extortionate rates for telegraphic service; the vast sums expended for machinery which was afterward thrown into the backyard, and other features of mismanagement which one might enumerate are passed over. The whole odium of this sad failure of journalistic enterprise is thrown upon the shoulders of the printer, who earned every cent that he received, and who did not figure in a character of which he knew nothing.

COMP.

HARD AT WORK.

The Tramway Cars to be Running on the Twenty-Second Instant.

The National Electric Tramway Company's cars will be moving on the 22nd instant. So says President Higgins, who returned last evening from the Mainland, where he made arrangements with the Vancouver and New Westminster Tramway Company for the use of a couple of their generators until his arrive. Mr. Francis, the company's superintendent, goes over to Vancouver to-morrow to bring the generators down, and upon their arrival here they will be put in position at once.

One hundred men are at present working for the company, some on the building, others on the machinery. No time is being lost, the men being at work both night and day.

DEATH OF CHIEF JIM.

The Old King of the Songhees Dies on Saturday—Preparing for the Funeral.

Old Chief Jim who, for a quarter of a century has reigned over the Songhees Indians, died on the reserve on Saturday night after a long illness. It is just about 26 years ago since Jim succeeded King Freezy, who was chief when the Hudson Bay officers first came to Victoria. When Chief Jim took the reins of power there were close on 500 Songhees Indians to celebrate the event. Now there are but 150 to mourn his loss, but they will be assisted by a thousand Indians from Beecher Bay and up the line of the E. & N., who arrived in the city to-day. Jim sent messages to all the surrounding tribes to come to Victoria as he wished to see them before he died, but they arrived too late and are now only able to take part in the mourning, which has already commenced.

Chief Jim was a hyas tyee, having descended from one of the big families of the tribe. He leaves no children, but leaves three close relations, one of whom will succeed him.

The Indians to-day commenced decorating themselves for the mourning services, which commence in earnest this evening. The funeral, which takes place to-morrow evening, will be conducted with all the pomp and ceremony known to the natives. The burial services will be conducted at the Roman Catholic pro-cathedral at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning, and the remains will be laid to rest in Ross Bay cemetery.

VIVE LA REPUBLIQUE!

Compatriots of the French Man-o'-War's Men Tendered a Cordial Reception.

Yesterday morning High Mass was celebrated on board the French man-of-war Dubourdieu, by Mons. l'Abbe Pannetier, the ship's chaplain. The chanting of the sacred music by the strong rich voices of the 500 sailors had a grand effect floating across the harbor. M. l'Abbe is a Jesuit priest, and a very pleasant gentleman to meet and converse with, as the vast majority of Jesuit priests are. He is held in the highest esteem by the officers and crew of the Dubourdieu. In the forenoon a party of Victoria's French residents, including Mr. and Mrs. Renouf, Mrs. and the Misses Hartnagle, Mr. C. Lombard and many others went down to Esquimalt to visit the representative of La belle Republique. They were given a most cordial reception by Rear Admiral Parrayon and his staff, and the gay Frenchmen, in honor of their guests, immediately instituted a fete, in which the ship's corps dramatique played a very prominent part. The main deck forward of the quarter deck was rigged up as a little theatre with the ship's bunting, seats were placed as if by magic by the deft hands of the nimble sailors and "voila! La Comedie Francaise a Paris, s'il vous plait!" Judging by the uncontrollable laughter of the spectator-guests the play tickled them immensely. The drolleries of the sailor actors and the admirable music contributing to form an entertainment worthy the best theatre on the coast. Next came a concert by the splendid band of the ship. They gave a most delightful entertainment, most of the pieces being of a lively nature. Around the ship, while the music was in progress, scores of boats gathered, the occupants listening with very apparent satisfaction to the enlivening strains. The guests of the ship were further invited to partake of the hospitalities in the form of a very palatable collation served in the main room. All were sorry to take leave of their gallant countrymen, and many a fond look was turned towards the grand vessel as the steam launch bearing them home sped shorewards, and every Frenchman present felt proud of the tricolor floating majestically at the peak of the Dubourdieu.

This fine war vessel is of a now obsolete type, is slightly armored and carries a large battery of long range rifles, with a full equipment of Hotchkiss, Gatling, Nordenfeldt, Maxim and other machine guns carrying small projectiles. At the fore, main and mizzen lower mastheads she has rifle pits of quarter inch steel, into which rapid-fire guns can be quickly introduced. The Dubourdieu can make very respectable speed under canvas; she is rigged like a full-rigged ship. Her crew are a smart looking lot of men and climb with the rapidity of monkeys about the rigging. Their style of rowing is a wonderful contrast to that of the British tar. The latter first of all takes a deep, firm grip of the water with the whole blade, pulls strongly back, takes the blade from the water with the upper edge towards the bow and swings back to the recover with the oar flat, the upper edge towards the bow. The Frenchmen take a little bit of a dip, raise the oar after the stroke and jerk the blade flat, the upper edge towards the stern, in which position it is carried back to the beginning of the stroke and brought down slantingly, the upper edge still towards the stern. In the water the blade makes a half turn, scooping a little water up, not ripping it out of place by the tubful as the British tar with his beef-sustained muscles is accustomed to do. The style of the French rowers is most peculiar, and has a queer jerky character about it that cannot find favor in British eyes. However, they manage to send their trim whalers and cutters along at a fairly good pace.

A Narrow Escape.

While the steamer Joan was at Port Townsend yesterday, one of the hurricane deck rails, on which a boy named Mansell was leaning, gave away and the young man fell into the water. There was but three feet between the boat and the wharf, but the boy came out with only a few scratches. Another individual fell off the dock into the harbor.

Died at the Hospital.

THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

Historical Sketch of the Anglican Church and Its Wonderful Development.

How the Victoria Branch Has Expanded Into Strong and Healthful Existence.

The worst enemy of the "Church of England as by law established" would never assert that the said church was founded and organized by King Henry the Eighth. Superficial readers of English history occasionally declare that the English Church was established by that brutal tyrant and conceited profligate, in order to spite the Church of Rome. It is doubtless true that the present organization, which in the Mother Country is established and controlled by law and statute, had its origin in some degree in those troublous times. Henry the Eighth, for instance, did break the authority of the Pope, constituted himself as supreme head of the church, murdered Catholic bishops and priests because they refused to take the Oath of Supremacy, and with kingly inconsistency executed Reformers because they refused to believe in the Real Presence in the sacraments.

To account for the position and prestige of the English church the student would have to go further back in the history of the English people. It would be necessary to write of the indefatigable zeal of early missionaries who planted the standard of the Cross amidst rude and savage tribes, to show how that the Christian religion gradually became a potent force in the councils of the nation; how the increasing power and jurisdiction of the Pontiff at Rome extended itself—to the remotest districts,—although never felt in early Britain as in the districts nearer Rome. How kings, rulers and people slowly, but surely, accepted the Bishop of the Seven Hills as the arbiter of quarrels, the Rule of Faith, the Supreme Monarch of Monarchs, in things ecclesiastical in particular and often in things temporal.

Henry the Eighth merely accentuated the growing uneasiness of the English people against the foreign yoke, and as that sainted monarch, murderer and profligate needed free license to carry out his licentious desires and tyrannical rule, the only barrier—the Pope of Rome—was ruthlessly set aside, and the Defender of the Faith became himself the ecclesiastical and secular ruler of the English people.

Henceforth the English church began its new life as a separate and distinct body. Edward the Sixth and "good" Queen Bess helped to complete what their father had begun, and the centuries that have rolled on since that time by law and ordinance, proclamation and statute, usage and custom and legal decision have helped to define and crystallise the powerful and splendidly equipped organisation, the Church of England.

The Church of England in British Columbia is a branch of the Church of England in Great Britain. That is to say it possesses the same ecclesiastical powers, usages and discipline, but it does not possess any secular powers or privileges that the English Church in England enjoys. It is not the "Church of England as by law established." Probably it is therefore the stronger. The organisation in British Columbia possesses all the powers, privileges, usages, customs and discipline that its parent stem enjoys; it is not amenable to the civil courts for any of its doings, save only in the ordinary sense in which all churches and all bodies are subject.

The history of the first church in the Province, now known as the Christ Church Cathedral, is indissolubly connected with the work of Rev. E. Cridge, now Bishop Cridge of the Reformed Episcopal Church. In 1855 the Hudson Bay Company desired religious teaching for the people of this settlement, and assisted with money and land the efforts put forth by the then representative of the Church of England, Rev. E. Cridge. Under his labors the cause grew and prospered until in 1858, when large numbers of men were attracted to the Province through the discovery of gold on the Fraser, Miss Burdett Coutts sent a goodly sum of money to found a Bishopric, and a permanent organization of the English Church. Bishop Hills was consecrated and took charge in 1860, being the first and for many years the only Bishop in the Province. At that time there was but one clergyman upon the Island; to-day there are 25 ministering the Word of Life upon the Island alone; himself the only Bishop in the Province; to-day there are those with numbers of clergymen on the Mainland. Then but a few hundreds of colonists scattered thinly over the province, to-day there are 100,000 white people, besides Chinese and Indians. The changes that have come to the province have naturally left its mark upon the organization over which he presides. Very early after the Bishop's settlement here, dissensions arose between the then Rector Rev. E. Cridge and himself, as to the conduct of public worship, terminating at last in law courts, separation and the formation of the Reformed Episcopal church. This appeared to be a heavy blow to the work at Christ Church Cathedral. Very few adherents remained with the Bishop, and perseverance and fidelity gradually overcame opposition and indifference, to-day the Bishop Rector can look with not a little pardonable pride upon the aspect of the work under his control. In about two months, on November 15, the now aged Bishop will cease to preside over the affairs of the diocese. With heart beating truce towards the church in which he has labored so long, with strong affection towards the people whom he has sought to train and nurtured, he will lay aside the armour, and retire into well earned rest and ease.

Christ Church Cathedral, the scene and sphere of his labors, is so well known to the readers of the TIMES that it is needless to describe it. The present building—two former ones having been destroyed by fire—was erected in 1874, at a cost of about $20,000. Plain, useful, comfortable, capable of seating about 800 persons, it is scarcely large enough for the accommodation of the growing congregation, often upon Sunday evenings, numbers having to remain unseated. Two fine glass stained windows ornament the eastern and southern parts of the church, the one in the eastern being erected by Bishop Hills in memory of his wife, and the other erected in memory of Eunice Elizabeth Marvin. Many well-known and leading citizens are to be found regularly worshipping within its walls. The organ is a fine one, presided over by Mr. Pauline, and is handled in masterly style. Its compass is such that plaintive cadence or rolling thunder can be interpreted with ease.

The present building is, however, to be superseded by a more ornate and substantial cathedral, which was referred to by Bishop Hills in his last address in the following terms: Since the erection of a new cathedral is of special interest to the Synod as being the parish church of the diocese, and a centre of large work for the benefit of all, it is satisfactory to know that after an open competition between both English and colonial architects, the eminent British architect, Sir Arthur Blomfield has selected a design as possessing the chief merit of all those sent in, and which recommends itself also to ourselves as being the plan of a Victoria competitor, and which will probably be accepted by the Cathedral committee. This design follows the plan of the ancient Cathedrals of the Church of England, those magnificent ornaments of our mother-land, which in our time are happily centres of spiritual life, presenting models of the beauty of devotional worship, seats of chastened learning, and sending forth from pulpits occupied by the most distinguished preachers of the day, utterances of sound doctrine and defence of the Christian Faith.

Our new cathedral will not of course compare in point of size with them, though on a site not to be surpassed anywhere, with a length of 236 feet, a tower and spire of 275, but it will be a most commanding, impressive and noble pile, erected for the worship and glory of God, and many may hope to see all the great objects—theological, educational, parochial and devotional—undertaken and carried out by a ministering and teaching body of learned and faithful clergy, for whose support in process of time, ample provision may be secured.

The preacher yesterday was Ven Archdeacon Scriven, M.A., who as the senior clergyman and highest in authority in the diocese, except the Bishop, might reasonably be suggested—if a local clergyman is elected at all—as the successor to Bishop Hills. Hebrews 6-10 was chosen as the basis of his discourse and it being Mission Sunday, the Archdeacon sought to impress his hearers with the necessity of almsgiving, which he assured them, though it did not deserve reward, yet would win the approbation of God. The service of the Church of England is to an outsider or occasional worshipper somewhat embarrassing. The choir filing in and out of the church, causing the congregation to rise, portions of the service—indeed the greater part being intoned or sung, the difficulty of finding the right page in the prayer book, the eastward position and the rapidity with which the Psalms are sung, are things of so ordinary a character to those nurtured in the faith of the English church that they may be pardoned if they forget that a stranger may appear awkward or possibly need a little help. "Let all things be done decently and in order," is evidently the motto of the clergy and congregation of Christ Church Cathedral. Prim decorousness rules; the free and easy Salvation Army manners are banished unceremoniously, the hearty geniality of Methodism or the sombre gravity of Presbyterianism are both ruthlessly expunged. The church, its discipline and usages, customs and worship of which Tillotson and Taylor, Lightfoot and Alford were shining lights, the church that numbers its adherents by millions, its clergy by thousands, whose revenues are of Protestant bodies the greatest, whose missionaries have penetrated into every land and who in these later years seems to have put on a new life and vigor, is the church that has won its way into the hearts of many in this city, whose hopeful enterprise, earnest zeal and indefatigable toil has given to itself a foremost position amongst the religious bodies of the Province.

Assaulted a Harmless Chinaman.

A Chinamen employed by Mr. Dumbleton, of the law firm of Messrs. Pemberton & Dumbleton, was assaulted by two young men who were driving at Cedar Hill in a buggy yesterday. He was struck on the forehead by a stone thrown by one of them. Fearing that they had grievously hurt the Celestial they leaped from their buggy and took to their heels. Two other white men helped the Chinaman into the vacant buggy and the Celestial drove to police headquarters. The young men, whose names are King and Elles tell, a different tale, alleging that the Chinaman stole the buggy.

TWO SUSPICIOUS DEATHS.

The Bodies of a White Man and a Klootchman Found Up-Country.

Superintendent Hussey this morning received notice of two fatalities in the eastern part of the province, one of which was mentioned in the TIMES on Saturday. That was the finding of a man's body in the river at Yale. The telegram announces that Coroner Pittendrigh, of New Westminster, will hold an inquest on the body to-day. The body has evidently not been identified as yet.

The other case is that of a klootchman. She was found dead in the woods at North Bend on Thursday last. She was last seen alive with a white man, who had two bottles of whiskey The white man has been arrested and is held in jail pending an inquest, which Coroner Clark is conducting to-day at North Bend. From the information received there is nothing particularly suspicious about the case, but it will be given a searching investigation. The man will in any event be punished for giving the woman whiskey, providing, of course, the fact can be established.

His Honor's Daily Levee.

William Vernon, Thomas Gadsby, alias Rockett, and Louisa Saunders were committed for trial by Magistrate McCrae in the police court this morning. The trio were charged with "holding up" James Carter, colored, on Store street, near the Telegraph hotel, on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Carter says Gadsby held him by the collar and demanded $1 from him, saying that he (Carter) had borrowed that sum from the Saunders woman Carter gave up the money under fear of violence. Antonio Rada verified the story of Carter, and John Baxter, who was passing at the time of the occurrence, says that he heard Gadsby say to the woman "You didn't give him the dollar but I got one, anyhow." The prisoner Gadsby, when arrested, had the money in his possession. Sergeant Levin and officer Smith caught the prisoners in their cabin the same evening. Alfred E. Wilson was charged with the theft of a pump. The prosecutor did not appear. Wilson got his liberty.

Shaken Before Taken.

Some grouse hunters had a lively time of it yesterday. They were hunting across land near Dean's, (where by the way, the game is altogether of the pheasant variety) when some steers took objection to the presence of a dog. They chased both the dog and the hunters, one of the latter of whom was impaled on a pair of horns and hoisted skywards. He reached terra firma without much more hurt than a severe shaking, and managed to crawl through the fence out of the way of the animal.

No One Caught.

Sergts. Hawton and Levin and Officers Redgrave and Smith yesterday visited a number of saloons, the proprietors of which were suspected of selling liquor on Sunday. At several of the saloons large crowds were found, but no liquor was seen on the bar. The officers had to knock for admittance, so that if liquor was being sold they did not stand much chance of catching anyone in the act of selling or drinking it.

En Route to Chicago.

Mr. F. P. Blackman, the attorney for the Canada Western, has received a letter from Frank Bakeman, who started for Chicago a week ago last Wednesday. The letter was written at Winnipeg, and Mr. Bakeman expected to be in Chicago on Tuesday or Wednesday. He spent a day in Vancouver, a day in Winnipeg and planned to make a short stay in St. Paul.

Was Very Successful.

The harvest festival at Metchosin yesterday was a very fine affair. Bishop Hills, part of the Cathedral choir and a number of other Victorians went out and participated in the festival. The Lord Bishop preached a splendid sermon. The choir rendered some choice music. The Victorians who went out returned late in the afternoon.

The New Orphan's Home.

The managers of the P. O. Home have sent away for plans of orphan homes recently built in different countries. It is their intention to compare their own ideas with the plans received, and hope in this way to get one of the best institutions to be obtained for the money at their disposal and work will be commenced as soon as possible.

Highlanders' Meeting.

A meeting of those interested in the formation of a Highland bridgade will be held at 8 o'clock to-morrow evening in the Sir William Wallace Society's Hall, Broad street. The committee appointed at the last meeting will report, and other important business will be dealt with.

A Splendid Success.

L. H. Northey returned home from Tacoma on Saturday evening. He says the exposition is a splendid success, and the music is better than they have ever had. He says a good crowd of British Columbians should go down on September 17.

Mr. E. W. Mathews, formerly Dunn Wiman's agent in this city, is shortly to be married to Miss Logan, daughter of ex-Mayor Logan, of Winnipeg. The ceremony is to take place this month.

Taking an Inventory.

J. C. Schimerhorn, who is to be superintendent and outside salesman for the Sayward mill, under the management of the Northey syndicate, and S. R. Holmes, who will be book-keeper for the mill, have arrived in the city from Tacoma. They have been with their present employers for four years. They, with Mr. Northey and Mr. Carmody, began the work of taking an inventory of the stock at the mill to-day.

The Late Seizures.

Captain Cox, president of the Sealers' Association, on Saturday forwarded to the Minister of Marine the particulars of the late Russian seizures, news of which was brought in by the E.B. Marvin. Indians, who arrived from Clayoquot on Saturday, reported a schooner with two topmasts off that place on Friday. They say she looked like the Triumph. Her arrival is anxiously looked forward to, as it is expected that she will bring more definite news from the fleet.

His Second Anniversary.

Rev. M. C. Browne yesterday celebrated the second anniversary of his mission work at St. Luke's, Mount Tolmie, and preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion at both morning and evening services. There were fairly good congregations present, many of whom wished the reverend gentleman many happy returns of the day. He has made himself many warm friends by his uniform geniality, sympathy and kindness, and particularly among the little ones of the district he is a prime favorite. Mr. Browne's whole heart is in the welfare of the place, and he lets pass no opportunity of doing or saying that which is good of it. Particularly untiring have been his efforts in advancing the cause of the church, and the result is becoming apparent now in the shape of a snug and constantly though not largely increasing congregation.

The Art Interchange.

The September number of The Art Interchange is more than usually attractive. It has an entertaining biographical sketch of the famous young American sculptor Paul Bartlett, with illustrations of some of his works. A new department—"Views by Her"—is exceedingly clever. The writer, whoever she is, understands art topics, and she has a lively way of poking fun at those who don't. A curious article on Woodwork, in the Chinese taste, is illustrated by plates from an English work of 150 years ago; and all house-dwellers will be interested in the charming $2500 house, which is fully illustrated by sketch plans and drawings, giving views of the exterior and interior, with suggested decoration for palor, dining-room, window, staircase, etc. Price of this issue of The Art Interchange, including five supplements (three in color), is 35 cts. For sale by all newsdealers.

Across the Straits.

The steamer Joan carried between three and four hundred excursionists across the Straits yesterday. Leaving Victoria about 10 o'clock the handsome little vessel showed her steadiness and speed in a good run to Port Townsend. Through the courtesy of Dr. Baldwin and Deputy Collector Colquhoun, and the good offices of Mr. Bartlett, the necessary formalities were soon disposed of and the party went ashore for a two hours' stay. Then the trip along the shore to Port Angeles was enjoyed, and at the "Gate City" a hearty welcome was extended by its citizens. The steamer left there at 8 o'clock, but made slow time for some distance out on account of the thick smoke. The weather was exceedingly fine all day, the only drawback being the great bank of smoke on the far side of the Straits, the result of extensive forest fires among the foot hills. The Joan is an ideal excursion steamer.

IN THE DAYS OF '59.

How Prospectors Fared in the Wild Regions of the Skeena in the Early Days.

Starvation One Day, Plenty the Next and Lots of Hard Paddling and Climbing.

Attacked by Hostile Indians—Magnificent Scenery of the Skeena Canyons.

Written for the TIMES by Major Downie.]

In 1859 some of the old hands got together and determined to go on a prospecting trip to Queen Charlotte Islands, as gold had been found there eight or ten years before. The merchants of Victoria were generous in those days, and they liberally subscribed money to charter the Island Queen, a fine smart schooner, the skipper Captain Robinson, to take about 90 or 100 of us up to the islands. We were to remain two months, and he was to get £1800 for his trouble and the use of his schooner.

After a pleasant voyage we arrived in Mitchell's Harbor and, without delay hired canoes for our prospecting and spread out inland and did a good deal of exploring. Our labors were not very fruitful. In Mitchell's Harbor I picked a little gold out of the rock near the water, but there was not much showing and it would not pay. We remained here until we got tired, then some of us left for Skidegate. We hired a canoe to go to Fort Simpson, but afterwards bought the canoe. We saw plenty of coal lying around, but as we were not after coal we did not heed it. At Fort Simpson the party broke up, all taking different routes.

I got it into my head to penetrate into the interior, to the head waters of the Fraser River. I procured a supply of a few assorted goods from Captain Dodd, who, along with Captain Swanson in Labouchere, was then in Fort Simpson. I started for the Skeena River with four men, two of them Indians. The two whites were William Manning, an Englishman, who was afterwards killed by the Indians in that Chilcotin murdering affair, where brave Allan McDonald also lost his life, on the same occasion. The other man was Hank Choteau, a yellow man. We worked hard to get up the Skeena, as it was getting low in some places, and the Indians would plunder all they could lay hands on. In some places they would want us to pay them for going up to their land. At one Indian camp they compelled us to stop and pay them. I think this camp was Kit Kloonah.

ATTACKED BY SAVAGES.

While we were standing talking about the money, near the bank of the river, I suddenly observed my Indians rushing for the canoe and getting their muskets ready for action. They shouted to me, apparently in great fear, "Major, major, chaco felix Siwash!" I instantly turned in the direction indicated by them, far up the steep ascent of rugged hillside, shagged with pines and strewn with enormous boulders, and saw a band of Indians with muskets coming down on the full jump, yelling their battle cry like demons. At the same time I saw my Indians jump into the canoe and lay their muskets ready for the attack and prepared to blaze away on command. I saw in a moment that if I ran for my canoe the fellows coming down the hill would open fire upon us the moment they reached the level and probably kill us all without a moment's parley. So I dropped down on the sand and told my Indians to stop, not to push off, and then got my pipe out for a smoke. When the savages came tumbling down the hill, all out of breath, and nearly on top of me, their loaded muskets held menacingly, they did not know where to look or what to say, as they fully at the very least, if not the pleasure of scalping the whole party.

So I lay on the sand filling my pipe and finding it hard to suppress a smile. At length an old klootchman came over to where I was and gave me a good stare. I gave her a needle as a present, and she instantly went off and told the other klootchmen of her good luck, and I had to give them one each all round; as I always have some in my vest pocket.

The Indians, seeing that they were missing something, and unable to control the innate curiosity so strong in the breast of the untutored savage, came over to see what was going on. They also wanted some needles. I gave them some, and also a little thread. This, the thread, is a great prize in an Indian camp, as the women have to make the thread out of such rude materials as Nature supplies them; the finer tendons of animals and the tough fibres of certain plants.

The Indians then drew off and held a council of war among themselves. Soon they directed two or three of their number to go back to the camp and bring down Roviscius and Cotsolilly. Then they persuaded my Indians to come ashore, and they feasted them. The savages who poured down the mountain side half-an-hour before like a wild avalanche, were now very inviting, and asked me to take up my abode with them and stay with them all the time. I could not see how I could possibly settle with them. I came across in that region, while we were prospecting, that may be valuable some day. I see that it has been rediscovered since my visit. These seams looked very favorable. The land is low for some distance back from the river on the west side.

Making a fresh start we reached the Forks of the Skeena. I understand the town of Hazelton stands there now. We were the first white men to come to the Forks, with the exception of the hunters, and trappers of the Hudson Bay Company. While up there I saw the Hon. John Work's name cut in the timber in several places. The trail they took when they went above this was by the West Branch, or what was called Rush-a-Bulo, the route at that time to Nass Glee and Babine Lake. I was determined to try the south east branch to see if that was passable and succeeded in getting the Indians to accompany us by this hitherto untrodden route.

The Indian village of Agullgeth is about six or seven miles above the Forks. When we reached there we had a hard job to get away again. I had only a little left to pay the Indians and had a very hard scratch to satisfy their demands that time. But I must say that they were generally very considerate, and I have often known them to come and give me the little tobacco back again when they saw how little I had. At last we got a start from the village of Agullgeth and clambered up the mountain. The travelling became at length pretty good, and not so rocky as might have been expected among such rugged alpine heights. At one point of our trip we crossed, single file, and not without feelings of considerable nervousness, a tree suspension bridge over a terrific chasm. The trees were bent down from either side of the abyss and the branches were interwoven in such a manner as to form a very good suspension bridge, a little shaky, like James Bay bridge, but it served our purpose very well. We came at last to a piece of country where the ground rises and is more free from rocks, with grass and shrubs growing luxuriantly, and I may say our progress here was rather pleasant traveling.

MAGNIFICENT SCENERY.

And now we paused to rest our wearied limbs and to look back at the region through which we had traveled all that day, and, oh, what a scene did we behold! We were above the glaciers, or, rather, on a level with them. Before us stretched away into the blue, ethereal distance, the magnificent forest-clad glen of the Skeena. The sun shed a soft light across the mountain caps of snow and gilded the lofty pines, and we could see the sheen of it far on the rushing waters below. But the effect of the light upon the glaciers far surpasses any mortal tongue or pen to describe. Inexpressibly lovely was the play of color along the face of the icy wall. It was worth five years of life to stand where we stood that day with the vast glaciers at our feet, so strangely grand, so awe-inspiring, so oppressive in their majestic beauty and magnitude. I look back with mute amazement on the wonderful natural panorama hidden away there, as it were, from mortal eyes in those distant mountain recesses. It seems to be the chosen home of solitude and of deep eternal silence, for no sound disturbed the profound stillness as we feasted our eyes upon the scene. It is worth a week's journey to see the grand wonders east of these lofty mountains.

I made a location here, claiming all this country for the Overland Atlantic and Pacific Railway Company. I expect the notice is on the tree yet, if the blazed tree itself still remain. This was in September, 1859. After we had taken a good look at the picture I have feebly attempted to describe, we partook of a small

TEMPERATE LUNCH OF FISH BONES.

We then picked up our packs and started afresh on our journey. We passed through fine groves of cottonwood trees on the way along the trail to the village of Nass Glee. As we came near the village we discharged our firearms and there was a rush of Indians up to where we were. They accompanied us to the village, and we were a wonder to them. Hank was a mulatto, and the Siwashes could not make out what manner of man he was at all, and repeatedly asked if he were a Boston man.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN.

There seems a general belief about that not only church buildings are exempt from civic taxation, but also the land upon which the buildings stand. This is not so. The Municipal Act of 1892 recites the exemptions, which are but few, as follows: "All places of worship, burial grounds and cemeteries in actual use, public hospitals and land adjoining not exceeding 20 acres, property held by, or in trust for Her Majesty, land and improvements the property of the Corporation, and the buildings set apart for orphan or poor children." Consequently the real estate upon which churches are built is entitled to assessment and taxation as any other land in the city. But why should the buildings be exempt? Why should the improvements of religious people be free and not the property of the secularists? Are the spiritualists a religious body, and is their property exempt? Equity and justice alike call for the imposing of taxes upon all citizens alike, regardless of religious views, orthodoxy or sentiment. At the same time, I venture to express my conviction that the time is hastening when all improvements shall be declared exempt, and the only tax levied be the taxes upon land. The record of the Hon. Robt. Beaven, in this particular is a very honorable one, and it cannot be too often remembered that the legislation which partially exempts improvements from taxation is the direct result of his ceaseless agitation and efforts. At the beginning of his year of office as Mayor he induced the council to formulate a by-law putting in force the permissive privileges enjoyed by municipalities by the act of 1889, enabling them to reduce the assessment on improvements by 50 per cent., and the astute Premier, then Attorney-General, in the Municipal Act of 1892, setting his sails to catch the passing breeze, introduced a clause which permits councils to exclude improvements from taxation entirely. The out-heroding Herod is an old device of the political ancestry of the Premier. Lord Derby took his famous "leap in the dark," Sir Robert Peel, the protectionist Premier, passed a free trade law, with the explanation, "Once I was blind, but now I see," and Disraeli "ran away with the clothes while the Whigs were bathing." Theodore Davie, Esq., is an adept at the art of political ledgerdemain, and I expect shortly to see him publicly embrace the editor of the Single Tax, shedding tears of contrition over his past misdeeds and promising unswerving allegiance to the single tax movement.

Some men deserve to be idle. I saw yesterday a "gentleman" smoking his cigar, and faultlessly dressed, strolling about the centre of the city. A few days ago his hard-hearted employer tyrannically required that he should keep the store and place of toil clean and tidy, to utilize the broom and mop a little, but the fine-souled, "free and independent," declined to do so. Now the employer is reduced to performing the chores with his own hands, and the noble employee is wasting his sweetness on the desert air. Verily, the sins of the employers are many.

A citizen suggests that a good collection of relics might be arranged for the coming agricultural exhibition. No doubt there are memories of the past associated with the struggles and conflicts of early days, that might well be exhibited and form the nucleus of a collection for years to come. The Pioneers' Society, the custodian of the Museum, and any old-timers could well undertake this work, and make a very interesting presentment for the thousands of sightseers. Will the President of the Pioneers' Society undertake this?

Dogs are a nuisance. An irate householder states this with an emphasis inexpressible on paper. The howling and barking, yelping and whining curs in said householder's direction are certainly nuisances enough to make a clergyman make strong remarks. A fellow feeling makes us wondrous kind and Quiz is ready to enter upon a crusade for the extermination of barking dogs. The canine quadrupeds, that might on the principle of the survival of the fittest, be taught music and dancing, or be instructed in the polite arts, could be spared. I am afraid the exceptions would be few, and if my ideas are strictly carried out the dog-license tax will be unremunerative shortly. In my immediate neighborhood, the witching hour of night seems to have a peculiar effect upon the doggish temperament. An unfortunate dog starts a solo; then a duet is heard, a trio is at once announced, followed immediately by a quartette, nuntil it seems that a perfect orchestra of canine voices are borne upon the midnight air. At such times I have longed for the place where "the wicked cease from troubling, and the weary are at rest." QUIZ.

THE GREAT INTERIOR.

Interesting Notes Culled From the Exchanges of the Upper Country.

Tom Haggarty of Golden, lost his residence and a valuable stamp mill by fire Sunday morning.

F. C. Gamble, Dominion Government Engineer, arrived in Kamloops on Thursday from Victoria.

J. A. Coryell is on the ground attending to the work of laying out the new townsite of Penticton.

Rev. Dr. Somerville, of Glasgow, conducted the dedication service in the new Presbyterian church, Benvoulin, yesterday.

P. O. Inspector Fletcher is paying attention to the needs of the Lower Okanagan country for an increase in mail service.

M. P. Stewart has been appointed secretary of the St. Andraws & Caledonia society of Kamloops in place of M. Lamont, resigned.

All the mines working have quantities of ore ready to ship, but as carriage by pack train is so expensive they are keeping it on the dump until the wagon road is ready.

Mr. Chas. F. Law, World's Fair Commission for B. C., says that great interest is being taken in the collection of minerals by miners, mine owners and prospectors alike.

Parties from Fish Creek report that Mr. Fishburne has struck a magnificent body of ore in the tunnel on the Annie. The face of the tunnel is in ore from side to side. The prediction made last fall by a reliable geologist that Fish Creek mines will become world-famed, is soon to be verified. Recent developments are exceedingly promising.

Henry S. Pittendrigh, manager of the Haynes estate at Osoyoos, and a son of Capt. Pittendrigh, J.P., of New Westminster, was married on Thursday at Vernon to Miss Nicholson.

N. Fitzstubbs, Government agent, and Mr. Hodgins, Government engineer, have been at Nakusp, examining the trail and route for a wagon road to Slocan. The road will be open for traffic in two months

Johnny Haynes, or Little John, the Indian who shot the Indian gambler Michel about three weeks ago, and who has been hiding in the mountains west of Okanagan Lake, has given himself up to J. Brent, J. P.

The steamer built for the Slocan lake traffic, which has been waiting two or three months for her engines, will be running in a month. The machinery is now en route from the John Doty Engine Co., of Toronto.

Glowing accounts of the mining prospects on Siwash Creek and vicinity are received. All claims are steadily improving. As good pan-outs are made in the several placer clean ups as was customarily witnessed in the palmy days.

Mr. S. Mason, of San Francisco, has bought a one-third interest in the Consolation gold mine at Big Bend for $500, the other partners being Messrs. Hunker and Geo. Laforme. Some splendid nuggets have been taken from the claim.

It is stated on reliable authority that the construction of the first section of the Revelstoke and Nakusp Railway is to be commenced at once. This section is from Revelstoke to the Northeast Arm, 25 miles, and for which $3200 per mile has been appropriated by the Dominion Government. It is also stated that six miles (from Revelstoke to the big sandbar) will be completed this fall.

Mr. Burgois, a prospector from the Fort Steel district, came in this week with samples of ore from the new discovery, which was his own. He reports a ledge of galena measuring 15 feet of excellent ore and of good concentrating porportions. This lode has been traced for four miles and is one of the finest discoveries made in the locality for the summer. Samples were assayed by Mr. Harvey and the results exceeded the sanguine expectations of Mr. Burgois.

Two big mining transactions have occurred this summer through the energy of Mr. W. T. Thompson of Granite Creek, the only "deals" of any importance recently made in Yale district. The first has been recently described; the second has just been closed. It is the purchase by Messrs. Reynolds and Atwood, representing an English syndicate, of extensive mining properties at Fairview, a cash transaction, and covering the Rattler milling and mining property at Fairview, consisting of stamp mill, saw mill and Rattler claim; also the Ontario, Brown Bear and Wynn M. locations on the same ledge. The amount ran into five figures.

The necessary crushing machinery for the McArthur-Forrest process of ore reduction (which consists merely of a small ball mill) has arrived at Golden and Mr. Colquhoun is now ready to treat ton lots by the process. From experiments the cyanide process is well adapted to the refractory ores of the province, and as there are so many of this character, there should be a great future before the patentees. Although the cyanide process extracts a high percentage of the metals, gold and silver, there is no reason to fear that smelting is a thing of the past. The smelter is undoubtedly best adapted to lead, copper and such like ores, and the McArthur-Forrest to sulphurets, in fact the syndicate make this a special point in their circulars and descriptions. The cyanide method will undoubtedly greatly assist the smelting works, each will find in this vast country ample scope for successful operation. The one should run in conjunction with the other where there is such a variety of ores. Mr. Colquhoun is working hard and deserves great support from the mining fraternity.

While prospecting above the snow line on the mountains near the north fork of the Illecillewaet on the 22nd ult., Messrs. Maxwell & Knowles met with a large silver tip bear, accompanied by a half-grown cub. Mr. Maxwell is the owner of a fine black dog of the lurcher breed (an excellent bear dog) which at once closed with the bear, and the two rolled over and over in the snow. The dog weighs about 50 lbs., and the bear would probably tip the scale at 500 lbs., but the dog was nimble and got out of the bear's clutches, but still kept up the attack. The bear then headed for the prospectors, who had no other weapons than the usual geological hammer and small handaxe. Again the dog grappled with the bear, and the fur flew in considerable quantities. As an opportunity offered Mr. Knowles struck at the bear with the hand-axe, making a deep gash across the head and nose, from which the blood spurted freely. This was a settler for Mrs. Bruin, and she speedily retreated into the bush, where the cub had previously disappeared, while the dog had to be restrained from following them. All the parties to the fight (except the bear) are now in town. This dog would be invaluable to any farmer, but unfortunately it is not for sale.

THE WORLD OF SPORT.

Ada the Up-Country Mare and Her Owner Create a Furore at the Races on Saturday.

A Bicyclist Beats Nancy Hanks' Time---Victoria Association Football Club.

THE TURF.

SATURDAY'S RACES.

There was a much larger attendance at the races at the Driving Park on Saturday than had been expected, the grand stand being well filled with ladies. It was a bad day for the sports as both the favorites in the Derby were left entirely out of the race. Ada, a "rank outsider," winning easily.

In the trotting and pacing, 2:40 class, Dart won three straight heats in 2:46, 2.41 3-5, and 2.41.

Marcelle won the one and a quarter mile dash, the third race she has won during the meeting, and, in fact winning every purse she went after.

The Derby was a terrible surprise to all. Ilex and Victoria, the two favorites which were being sold against the field, were left entirely out of the race. McConnell's Ada, ridden by her owner, a man 65 years of age, but tough in fibre as the Douglas fir, took the lead from the start, although he was in fifth place, and won easily, the game little mare increasing her speed every time the other horses came near her heels. The other horses came in as follows: Rose, Ilex, Victoria and Rex.

Leap Year, Wm. McNeil's Queen's plate winner, has gone quite lame. She was not in condition when run, hence the poor showing made by her. She is being given every care possible.

M'CONNELL OBJECTS.

Mr. McConnell, whose mare Ada won the Derby on Saturday, has refused to accept the $595 offered him by the Jockey Club. The amount of the purse with entrance money added was $835. Mr. McConnell claims that he is entitled to this amount, less $50, the second horse's entrance money. The committee say that he is entitled to only $595, $200 going to the second horse and $50 to the third. Mr. McConnell will not accept this proposition and says he will go to law if the matter is not settled.

FOR VANCOUVER.

Several of the horses which took part in the races here last week will go to Vancouver for the British Columbia Jockey Club's races on Saturday. Shamrock and Ripton have already gone up, and they will be followed by Dart, Primero, Murphy and Johnny Hooker. Dart will stand a good chance for the 2:40 race, and Primero is an almost certain winner for the stallion race.

McKeon's Mayflower is much better to-day.

DONCASTER CUP.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The race for the Doncaster Cup to-day was won by Chesterfield, a four-year-old chestnut colt, by Wisdom out of Bramble. Mr. H. C. Bonsor's three-year-old chestnut colt, Thessalian, by Wisdom out of Prickles, was second, and the three-year-old brown filly Brandy, by Retreat out of Restorative, was third.

FOOTBALL.

VICTORIA ASSOCIATION CLUB.

The association football players met at the James Bay Athletic Club on Saturday night and organized for the season under the name of the Victoria Association Football Club. The following officers were elected: President Sir Matthew Baillie Begbie; vice-president, Lt.-Col. Prior, M.P.; captain, B. H. T. Drake; secretary, W. Allan; treasurer, J. S. Bullen; committee, Messrs. Foulkes, Goward, Heap and Boyd. The first game of the season will be played on October 1st, the team to be picked by the captain and secretary, and an effort will be made to organize a provincial association.

RUGBY.

The Rugby players will meet this week to organize for the season.

WHEELING.

BEATING NANCY HANKS.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 12.—Zimmerman started for Nancy Hanks' mile record with a flying start. He did not succeed, but established a bicycle record of 2.08 4-5. He next tried one flying start, half mile, making it in 1 1-5. George F. Taylor lowered Zimmerman's flying mile, 1.08 1-5. The New Jersey rider was then sent after Nancy a second time, and eclipsed her record, made on a regulation track, by 1-5 of a second. His time was 2.06 4-5. About 200 spectators witnessed the test and nearly went wild when the result was announced.

THE OAR.

THE M'LEAN-HANS RACE.

NANAIMO, Sept. 11.—The race on Saturday night between McLean and a local oarsman named Hans did not attract so much attention as on previous occasions. Nor did it surprise the onlookers when McLean came in the winner. Hans claims there was no boat for him to go round, and so he was compelled to go round the same boat as McLean, which gave the latter quite an advantage; but it is generally believed McLean could give him a 100 yards over the same course and beat him.

YACHTING.

RACES ON THE TAPIS.

At a meeting of the Victoria Yacht Club held on Saturday evening it was decided to hold a race on the 24th inst. The first race of the International Association takes place at Seattle on October 3rd.

CANOEING.

AN EXCITING RACE.

The Watson-Neil canoe race which took place yesterday over the harbor course, was exciting and close. Both used Indian canoes, found on the Rancherie beach. Watson won by about half a length.

LACROSSE.

TALL THROWING.

Barney Quinn, of the Capitals, at Ottawa on Saturday broke the world's record for throwing the ball from lacrosse. He threw it 165½ yards, beating the record by 15 yards.

LAID THE CORNER STONE.

Directors of the Board of Trade Perform the Ceremony at the New Building.

The corner stone of the Board of Trade building on Bastion Square was laid this morning at 10:30 o'clock by President T. B. Hall of the board, surrounded by the members of the executive committee of the building association. The ceremony was very simple and very quiet, hardly a dozen people besides the mechanics at work on the building, being present. Among those noticed were A. C. Flummerfelt, R. P. Rithet, C. E. Renouf, Dr. J. S. Helmcken, and the secretary of the board.

In the cavity in the stone were placed the articles of the board, the constitution and by-laws and the coins of the day. This done the cap stone was swung in and placed, when Mr. Hall, trowel in hand went to work.

A few blows from the hammer put the stone in place, so that it responded to the spirit level, and the work was done. At a neighboring and convenient place "the health" was quaffed standing.

The corner stone is in the column to the right of the main entrance and level with the ground floor. There is no inscription on it and it is a simple block of Saturna Island stone.

A KAMLOOPS CENTAUR.

Ada's Owner is No Fool When it Comes to Questions of Horseflesh.

A. McConnell, the old Kamloops farmer, as he was called at the track last week, will leave for home on Wednesday morning with his mare Ada, which won the Derby, and another animal which he brought down but did not enter. The people at the track saw a man old enough to pass for old Father Time or Santa Claus, clad in an old riding suit and mounted on a rather pretty animal made all of them that had no money on the race wish that he would win. Hence there was joy when he pulled his mare under the wire several lengths in the van. McConnell owns a splended stock ranch of 1000 acres five miles south of Kamloops. He came to British Columbia in 1862, and in the old days rode many a race in Victoria. He owned both Beutrelph and Portia Knight, sire and dam of Ada. They are now dead, but the strain of the former is known throughout the province. Portia Knight was a little mare, but one of the best that ever ran here. McConnell says he has lots of horses as good as Ada, and will have some of them here next year. He comes to every meet, but has been unlucky up to the present time.

PAINFULLY WOUNDED.

Narrow Escape of a Boy From Being Shot Dead.

Arthur Hardie, the young son of Henry Hardie, of 30 Bay street, was accidentally shot and painfully wounded by John Cartmel, one of his boy companions, with whom he was out hunting in Esquimalt harbor yesterday morning about 11 o'clock. The two boys mentioned, with a son of S. P. Tuck, went down to Esquimalt for a hunt in the morning. Hardie and Cartmel were in a Rob Roy canoe, together, while Tuck was alone in another. They had a small rifle and a 22-calibre toy pistol. All of the shells for the rifle were used and then the boys began firing the revolver. Just before the accident Hardie asked Cartmel, who had the revolver, to let him take a shot. The little fellow loaded the weapon and was just preparing to hand it over when it was discharged. The bullet struck a button on the front of Hardie's clothing and glanced upwards entering and embedding itself behind the seventh rib. The wounded boy was able to help get the boat ashore and walked part of the way to the Marine Hospital. Dr. Jones was called from the Warspite, and he, with two other surgeons from the fleet, cared for the boy. A small particle of cloth was picked from the wound after the boy had been placed under the influence of chloroform, and the bullet was traced to where it lay, but was not extracted. The wound was then dressed. The child rested well during the night, although he was in pain last evening, and the doctors have no fears.

The boy will remain in the Marine Hospital until he is materially improved. He was visited last night by his brothers and sister. Two of his sisters are nurses at Jubilee Hospital and have cared for the smallpox patients during the epidemic.

THE MEMBER FOR CARIBOO

Chats Entertainingly Upon the Questions of Interest in the Land of Gold.

Dr. Watt, member elect for Cariboo district, said this morning: "The sheep question is perhaps of the greatest importance to the Cariboo settler. The settlers rightly claim that the sheep which now number 5000 are being grazed upon the commons destroy the bunch grass. The bunch grass after a flock of sheep have grazed upon it, is unfit for the use of cattle. Cattle will not graze after sheep and even if they would, the grass, which is cropped too low by the sheep does not grow again for years. The sheep do not belong to settlers, but are sent into the country by companies from the east side of the Fraser river. The settlers are agitating for redress of their grievance, and believe that they will receive recognition at the hands of the Government.

Crops are good this season. But the wet season, which has done much for hydraulic mining, has been the cause of partial loss of crops. There was difficulty in getting in the hay crop. And a portion of the wheat and oat crop is yet standing. Notwithstanding this little obstacle the crops, on the whole, have surprised expectations. The Cariboo country could easily feed the whole of the southern portion of British Columbia. The lack of a market limits the settlers in their crops. The gold fields are as yet the only market for Cariboo produce.

If rain damaged the crops slightly it has more than righted matters by causing a good and prolonged season in the hydraulic mining claims. The prospects are that there will be more than the usual output of mineral wealth. The Slough Creek mining company have struck something rich near Barkerville, and the Heyborn and the South Fork mining company, operating on the river bottom of the Forks of the Quesnelle, are confident of a good find.

About the election? Well, I am elected, you see. I rode through the country on horseback, but we soon hope to have the Canada Western passing through our country, and further candidates for legislative honors may have an easier mode of transit than I had."
